I just got your message and wanted to thank you for your usual thoroughness. Whether this is supposed to be a part of your job or not, you epitomize excellence in customer service. You endear people to you when you do so which gives birth to a loyalty factor which is so difficult to find in today's business climate.

Your ability to be organized, knowledgeable and reliable is of great help. The fact that you follow up is extremely important and appreciated. If you don't have the answer when asked, you find it and return a call within an acceptable amount of time. Also, the fact that you are willing to take the extra step makes a huge difference and sets you apart from others.

Your services have provided me with financial peace of mind for my family. Considering how I am the single wage earner in our family, I often considered what would happen in a worse case scenario. Insight you have given me and the products that your company has provide I feel confident that I appropriately planned for my family's future and well-being. Your customer service has been outstanding and indiscriminant. I personally feel that you are servicing myself and my company very well.

Before you came into our lives, I had to answer (or find the answers) to all the insurance questions. And I, like most, do not like insurance. Then you came in and we never knew there could be someone like you. You took so much of a workload off me. You are there to answer all my and all the employees' questions. You come in to sign up all new employees, so everything they are told is correct, not just what I make up. When someone has a question, we can call you at anytime and you get the situation taken care of fast. I know this isn't the place, but THANK YOU for all you do for us.
